AIRESURF RELEASES MEGAFT™ TEST RESULTS

Bryan D. Moir, CEO of Airesurf Networks Holdings Inc. (“Airesurf”)(CNQ-AIRE), today released the latest test results of the company’s MegaFI™ WiFi amplification system. The tests were conducted in a variety of atmospheric conditions and building types to obtain a baseline for customers installing the company’s system.

Using test equipment manufactured by one of the world’s largest router manufacturers, and an omni antenna array, Airesurf amplified the WiFi signal from an access point to a radius of just under 700 meters during a heavy rainfall. This test proved that the unit was capable of extending the range of an access point/wireless router to cover an area 1.3 km in diameter. Airesurf plans to use these results to promote the use of the MegaFI™ system to companies involved in developing municipal WiFi networks and commercial hotspots.

In addition, Airesurf conducted a variety of concrete penetration tests involving different types of building architecture. An independent system integrator in the United States confirmed these results. Tests showed that in poured concrete and rebar-reinforced architectures (common from the 1930’s to the 1990’s) the MegaFI™ System was able to penetrate 4 floors of concrete and consistently received a high signal strength in the elevator and stair columns.

The MegaFI™ System is able to maintain peak performance of the access point throughout the extended range without any signal deterioration.

Airesurf will use these results to support the efforts of its partners working with property management companies updating their service offerings to their tenants.

Airesurf is a researcher and developer of wireless (WiFi) digital communication amplifiers for access points and routers. The Company recently received FCC approval for its MegaFI™ System. Airesurf trades on the CNQ Exchange as Trading Symbol AIRE. For more information, please visit: www.airesurfnetworks.com
